NOTE FROM THE EDITOR

As the holidays approach, we find ourselves caught up in the season's hustle and bustle. Amidst all this activity, we also find ourselves seeking refuge in the warmth and comfort of our homes.

In the midst of our increasingly hectic lives, our homes transform into central hubs. They become the backdrops for everything, from intimate gatherings to lively get-togethers.

In exciting news, the launch of our furniture line at Edmonton's Design Week was a resounding success. Now, we are looking forward to seeing our stylish furniture into customer's homes!

We hope you enjoy our winter edition of Design Life and that it provides you with inspiration for the upcoming year.

VIBRANT PERSONALITY

The project involved a vibrant family of two medical professionals and their two young children. Their personalities exuded vivacity, which became the guiding principle behind every design decision. As with all of our designs, the details of this project really showcase what was important to this family. This includes more than creating a design that looks great - it means making sure that our design will family in their day-to-day lives.

I love our home so much!

Everything brings me so much joy and happiness.

It's so functional and absolutely stunning

F.R..

As a surgeon who enjoys cooking in his downtime, the kitchen needed to be similar to an organized operating room. Every tool has its designated spot for effortless access.

As well, we focused on better functionality in spaces like the butler's pantry—a hub for both elegant entertaining and a practical zone where kids prepare lunches, keeping the main kitchen uncluttered.

Sleep took center stage in our design approach. The bedroom was engineered to enhance rest, while the ensuite and closet were siloed to create non-disruptive morning routines. These adjustments will help these dedicated medical professionals navigate demanding schedules and prioritize rest and relaxation.

Your home's design is like a self-portrait. It mirrors the individual it represents; each choice, from colors to textures, reflects your essence and character.

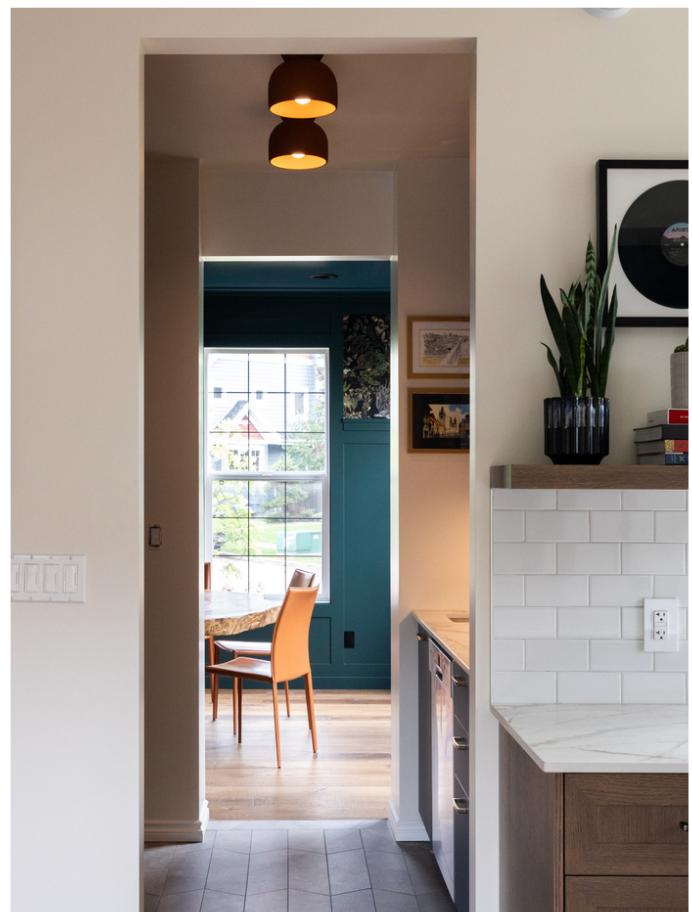

Transforming this traditionally styled home into a more eclectic space meant making strategic design choices. Details such as wallpapered ceilings and high-gloss paints added character without overwhelming the overall aesthetic.

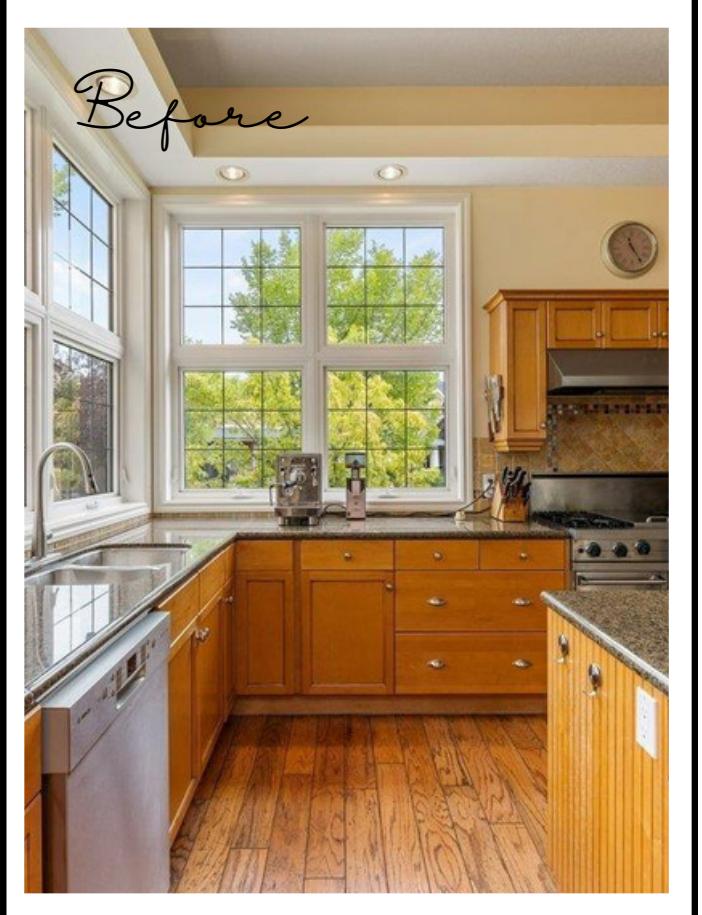

Our design integrated a range of materials, including a carbon-neutral countertop. This choice is both sustainable and durable, ready to withstand extensive use.

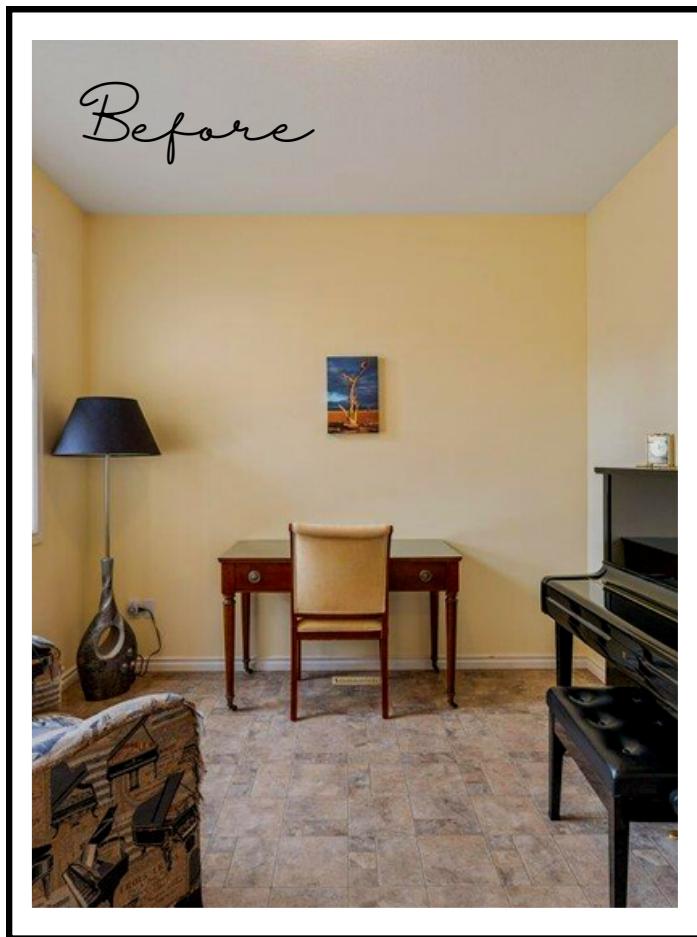

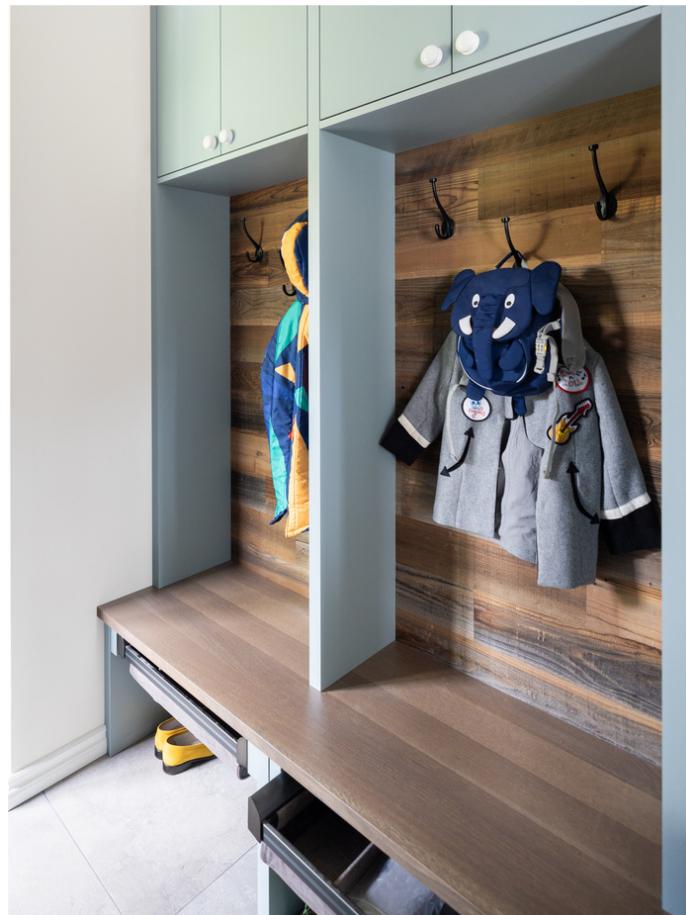

In the dining room, the velvet wallpaper takes center stage. We maximized its impact by using it sparingly to create a powerful focal point within the space. Placing it higher not only enhanced its visual allure but also served a practical purpose, safeguarding it from the realities of life with small children.

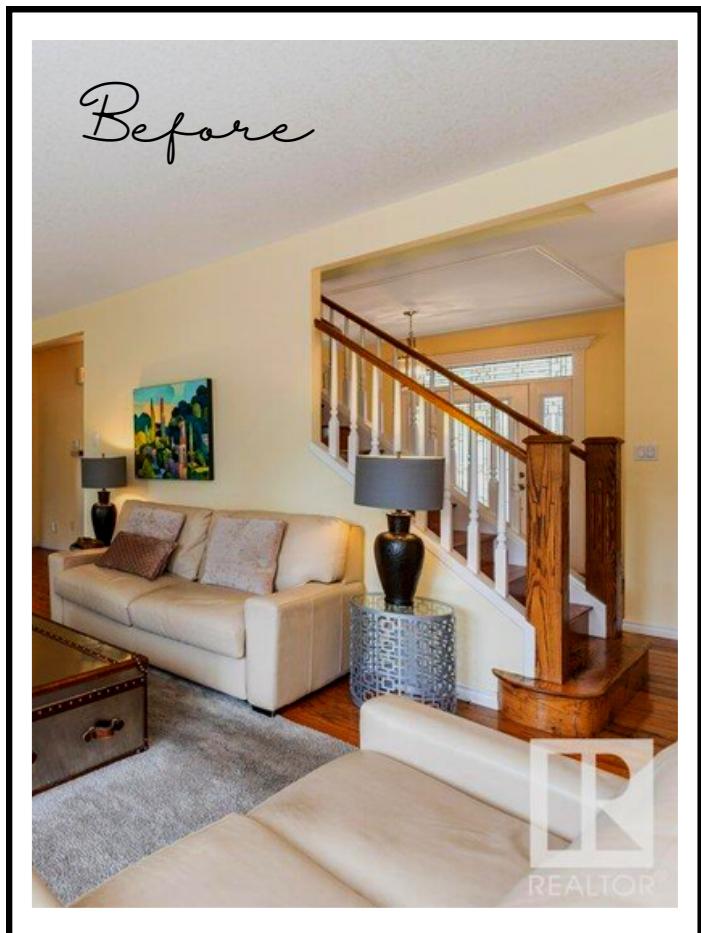

We also used personal details of their relationship that carried their history into the future of their family home. A photo of the spa tile taken on their first date served as inspiration for the tile pattern in the risers of their staircase.

"The best rooms have something to say about the people who live in them."

David Hicks

We infused the vibrant spirit of our client, reflecting their love for color and the rich allure of red wine in a sun-soaked laundry room, just one of the many spaces where their unique personality shines through.
